flow leadership®: Training managers

Webinar-offer

Back to normal?

Shaping the transition for employees

During the crisis, many companies have adopted something like a new "routine". New forms of communication and teamwork, changed work rhythms and structures. What happens with the new experiences when the time of presence of the employees increases again? To make the transition motivating is your task as a manager.

In our webinar, we will deal with essential questions managers deal with when planning the "back to work": Between a new start and "as before Corona" - which path is most suitable for your team? How can you and your team maintain newly acquired effective habits in the lock-down? Where do you need to regain your old strength? And: Who will do the analysis? You or your team or both together?

In the interactive format you develop approaches to prepare for the "new old" situation and receive valuable suggestions for your everyday leadership.

target group: Managers at all levels

duration: 2 hours

group size: till 6 participants

This will be a customized webinar. We will arrange an individual appointment with you. You are welcome.
